

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to improved cooling of an electronic component loaded to a Printed Circuit Board, wherein the PCB comprises at its upper side at least one electronic component, and at least one Heat Conducting Member inserted into a through-hole of the PCB, wherein the HCM extends from the upper side to the lower side of the PCB and has a thermal contact to the component.

[fig.1 for publication]

10
